PLANNING

Highland Council planning guidance supports a variety of uses for the site including office, leisure, service or retail within a mixed use development. These uses are identified within the Highland-Wide Local Development Plan (April 2012). Inverness City Centre Development Brief (February 2018) sets out site specific development guidelines for the site. The Inner Moray Firth LDP was adopted in 2015 and identifies the site (IN4) as a mixed use development opportunity. The Inner Moray Firth LDP is under review, and is currently at the Main Issues report stage. Given the support within the three documents noted, it is reasonable to expect the continued promotion of a mixed use site will be in line with the emerging Main Issues Report for the New Inner Moray Firth LDP.

In consultation with Highland Council a Planning and Design Guidance Document has been produced for the site. This sets out in more detail the development opportunity, relevant planning policy, with guidance on development density, massing, access and parking provisions. A copy of the Design Guidance Document can be provided on request.

Prospective purchasers should make their own enquiries to Highland Council as to the suitability of their proposed development in the context to planning policy.

LOCATION

Inverness is the administrative, educational, business and commercial centre of the Highlands. Between 1991 and 2011 the population of Inverness grew by almost 18% to over 79,000. Significant improvements to transport infrastructure is ongoing which will deliver further growth potential.

The site occupies a prominent position within the Longman Core area, an important gateway to Inverness City Centre. Neighbouring occupiers include B&Q, Halfords, Wickes, Dreams, Cotswold Outdoor, Tiso, Longman House offices and numerous car dealerships including Arnold Clark, Mini, Mercedes, BMW. The site sits alongside the recently completed £24 million Justice Centre.

PROPERTY

The site which is broadly rectangular extends to 1.83 Hectares (4.52 Acres) and benefits from extensive road frontage to both Longman Road and Harbour Road. The former Inverness College campus buildings have all been demolished.

ACCESS/TRANSPORT LINKS

The site is highly accessible by walking, cycling, public transport as well as for vehicles. The bus and train stations are within 800m or a 10 minute walk from the site. Numerous and regular bus services run along Longman Road, bus stops are located adjacent to the site. Longman Road (A82) connects to the A9(T) 0.8km to the West of the site, providing easy access to the local and regional road network.

There are proposals to improve the A9/A82 Longman Junction located on the A9 trunk road in Inverness. The junction forms a strategic link with the A82 trunk road as well as accommodating traffic movements from the A96 trunk road via the adjacent Raigmore Junction, located immediately to the south on the A9. Furthermore, the Longman Junction also caters for local traffic movements providing a key link to surrounding developments located on the east and west sides of the A9. There has been Highland City Deal funding put in place to implement these planned improvements, which will improve the operational effectiveness of the A9 as it approaches Inverness.

The site is currently accessed from Longman Road, Harbour Road and Burnett Road. A Transport Appraisal is available on request. This includes comment on future development access options.
